

Sir Joseph Banks Country Park

This park comprises over 80 acres of woodland including Westgate Wood, Oak Wood, and Jenny's Wood. Each of the parks in this cluster of natural space has its own identity, bursting with character for visitors to explore.

Westgate Woods

Dotted throughout the woodlands of Westgate Woods is a range of beautifully crafted wood-carved statues. These statues are great to discover with younger children on family strolls through the woodlands. Westgate Woods has also been selected as a 'Local Wildlife Preservation Site'.

Oak Wood

Journey through the natural archways of Westgate Wood onto the paths of Oak Wood and into the open wildflower meadow sprawling with natural wildlife and scenic walkways. A beautiful stone owl tower rises through the fields of ground-nesting birds in the open space of the country park. A collection of hard-standing benches and an undercover picnic area make this a fantastic spot to enjoy the outdoors at your own pace.

Jenny's Woods

A short walk across the road from Westgate wood and Sir Joseph Banks Country Park is Jenny's Wood. An area of meadows, paths and ponds makes this a great spot for dog walkers. At the east end of Jenny's wood is a spacious car park with a charming snack shack offering various refreshments and treats for the dogs.
